According to Cherokee legend, the world was created by a powerful being known as Atahakli. Atahakli emerged from the primordial waters and created the earth, sky, and all living creatures. He is also said to have given the Cherokee their laws and traditions.

The Hero Twins

One of the most famous Cherokee legends is the story of the Hero Twins, Beloved Son (Uktena) and Killer of Monsters (Uktena). These twins were born from a mortal woman who was impregnated by the sun. They grew up to become legendary warriors who defeated many monsters and protected the Cherokee people.

The Seven Clans

The Cherokee are divided into seven clans: Bear, Bird, Deer, Fish, Panther, Wolf, and Long Hair. Each clan has its own unique history, traditions, and responsibilities.

The Choctaw

The Choctaw, originally known as the Chahta, are another large Native American tribe. Their mythology is rich in creation stories, animal tales, and trickster figures.

The Creation of the World

According to Choctaw legend, the world was created by a powerful being known as Chahta Abby. Chahta Abby emerged from the primordial waters and created the earth, sky, and all living creatures.

Rabbit the Trickster

One of the most popular Choctaw legends is the story of Rabbit the Trickster. Rabbit is a clever and mischievous character who often outwits his opponents. His stories are often humorous and teach lessons about the importance of wit and cunning.

The Ball Game

The Choctaw ball game is a traditional game that is still played today. The game is said to have originated with the Choctaw people and is a way to honor their ancestors and connect with their culture.

Other Native American Myths and Legends

In addition to the Cherokee and Choctaw, there are many other Native American tribes with their own unique myths and legends. These stories offer a glimpse into the diverse cultures, beliefs, and traditions of these ancient peoples.

The Navajo

The Navajo people are known for their beautiful sand paintings, which are used for religious ceremonies and healing rituals. Their mythology is rich in stories about the Holy People, who created the world and gave the Navajo their laws and traditions.

The Hopi

The Hopi people are known for their elaborate kachina dolls, which represent spirits and are used in religious ceremonies. Their mythology is based on the belief that the world was created by a powerful being known as Taiowa.

The Lakota

The Lakota people are known for their warrior traditions and their deep connection to the natural world. Their mythology is rich in stories about the Great Spirit, Wakan Tanka, and the Thunder Beings.
